

ENCOURAGING REPORT OF WISCONSIN CROPS

Farmers in General Will Plant Added Amount of Wheat This Summer, Says Reserve Bank Report.

The monthly statement of the Ninth Federal Reserve Bank, of Chicago, gives a very encouraging report of the wheat conditions in Wisconsin and Minnesota, and states that indications are that there is a movement among the farmers toward the planting of that crop this season. The percentage increase will be about ten per cent while corn production in most localities will show a decrease of from ten to twenty-five per cent.

The report follows: Throughout Minnesota and Wisconsin a new and interesting condition which will substantially improve the production of wheat is disclosed by numerous reports which indicate that in sections where farmers have been practically out of wheat growing for years past, there is a decided movement toward the planting of this crop this year. An one Minnesota bank expresses it, "Our farmers are getting tired of war bread and are putting from ten to forty acres each of wheat this year." This contribution to the wheat acreage will be most valuable addition to the crop. The planting will be done on farms that are under excellent cultivation and in territory where the soil fertility and advanced methods of farming are such as to insure considerably better than the average returns per acre. In the remaining portions of the state where wheat has been a staple crop, there is every indication that the average will increase by at least 10 per cent, while corn in most localities will show a decrease of from 10 to 25 per cent in the acreage planted. The report also promises an improved acreage, while oats, flax and buckwheat will remain about the same.

Reports from all parts of the district indicate that all that could be expected has been done to hold corn at a normal production. The movement of all so-called corn has gained considerable headway, and has undoubtedly resulted in substantially increasing the amount of corn that will be planted. The difficulties of obtaining seed have been very great and the price has been extremely high. While the loss of acreage is regrettable, there is still room for congratulation in the fact that the decrease in the acreage is not much greater than now appears to be in prospect.

Banking and business conditions show little change. The demand upon all banks is active as a consequence of the early opening of spring operations, and business, while slow in construction and similar lines, is fair to good in the merchandising lines, and in the commodities are moving much as usual.

FRENCH BUILD GIANT WIRELESS TO AID U. S.

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.] With the French navy has just entered the international contest for the honor of building and possessing the most powerful wireless station in the world.

In support of this claim, the French navy has just demonstrated its ability to send messages as far as Australia. The station, there, which registered the messages from the new French naval station, were not powerful enough to acknowledge by wireless their receipt, but had the courtesy to reply by ordinary cable that the French wireless communications had been received.

The new French naval wireless station is in reality an acknowledgment of gratitude of the French navy to the United States for its entrance into the war.

The moment America made its formal declaration against the enemies of France, the French navy decided to erect immediately a powerful wireless station that would put France in constant and sure touch with America. It was planned also as a very effective safeguard against the submarines for the stream of troop ships and munition carriers which it was expected would soon be headed for France.

A site was accordingly chosen on the French coast, where it was made likely that one of the American naval bases would be established, and from where it would be able to pick up with the greatest degree of certainty distress messages from the American boats that might encounter a submarine.

The metallic pylons of the French station are about 600 feet high. Perfect electrical equipment makes it possible to send out waves that will be received at any distance at which they can be picked up in the form of musical sounds instead of a set of letters crackling out of the wireless. As a result of these musical intonations the receiver is always able to pick out the waves of the French wireless plot from all the other stations which it waves with which the air may be filled.

Waves can be sent out with a length of from 3,000 to 13,000 yards, which, as it is a new type of demonstration, carry as far as Australia. The electrical apparatus furnishing the current for these waves is capable of producing 690 horse power.

What the French navy is particularly proud of, however, is that it finished the plant in six months in time to protect from the very first the convoys of American troops and war material.

TWO WAR COUNCILS TO MEET THIS WEEK

Chicago, Ill., April 8.—Two of the most important "war councils" of civilian generals of the "men behind the men behind the guns" ever held in the United States since our entrance into the world war will take place in Chicago.

One of the twelve leading lumber manufacturers' associations in the country opened its sixteenth annual two-day meeting today. The other is the annual meeting of the very Uncle Sam's boundless forests into cantonments, ships and airplanes to squelch "Kultur."

Chicago, Ill., April 8.—The rise and fall and rise again of the heavyweight boxing class from the days of John L. Sullivan up to the present has been an interesting process, and offers a study of the effect of public opinion seldom met with in the fight game.

Before Sullivan established himself as a world's champion fighter of all classes were left alone to do pretty much as they pleased. Sullivan changed the bloody part of it when he gave up the London Prize Ring rules in favor of the more gentle Marquis of Queensbury code.

The popularity of Sullivan made it possible for a heavyweight champion to capitalize his fighting ability, and as fighters became more and more known, their methods improved. Jim Corbett was of an entirely different type than Sullivan, but undoubtedly a most effective man at his particular style of fighting. Aside from whipping Sullivan, his record is a very common place thing for which he won the world's championship he fell into a period of inaction that caused his defeat on his next appearance against a good man—Bob Fitzsimmons.

Fitzsimmons was recognized as the most marvelous fighter the world has seen, for, weighing much less than a heavyweight was supposed to weigh, he managed to win the world's title from the towering Corbett.

Then the size of heavyweights began to go upward, taking Jeffries, Johnson and Willard, the hugest of them all. Fighting ability went back after Jeffries surrendered the title, for

Willard would wind up a career of pacifist principles in an ago of fighting should he agree to meet Fulton in a decision, short bout. The only scrap he has engaged in since he thrashed Jack Johnson was one of the kind of fiasco and it was just as unsatisfactory as it is possible to make a bout. There is no reason to believe that another of the same length and character should prove any more thrilling to the astic public.

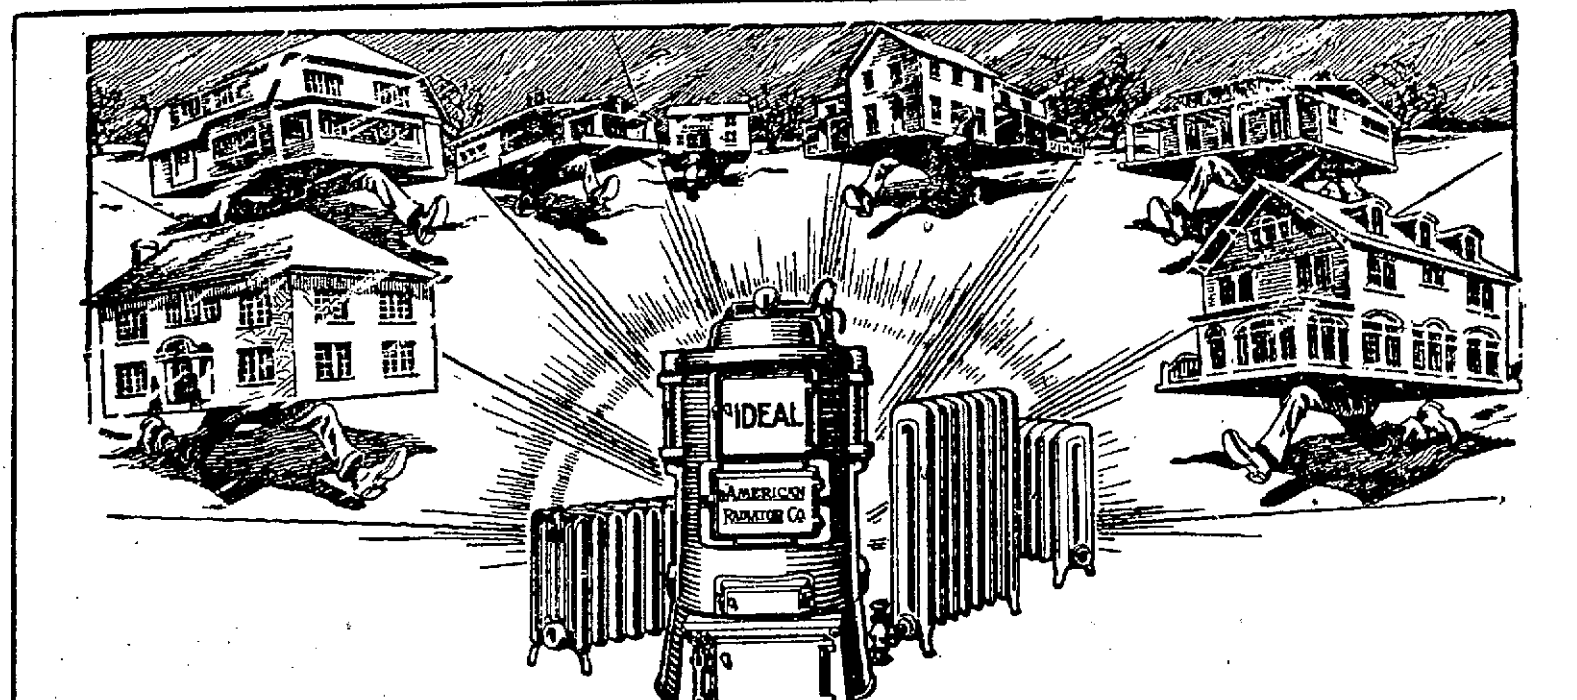

As a matter of fact, based on a comparison of records, Fulton is fully capable of the same length and character inside ten rounds, but the public would smell a rat if the fight is finally held under that revision. The public, long-suffering at the conclusion that a going to the conclusion that Jess and Fred are going to fight for the honor of staging a longer bout at some other day. Jess has stated he wants no more professional fights when he takes on his chief contender, but really wants to go into action for the purpose of defending his title against the best of the big men. The public certainly has started pulling for Willard to make his word good with a long fight and a decision tacked onto the end.

BAPTIST BOWLERS WIN MATCH FROM THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH LEAGUE AGGREGATION

Ten Baptist bowlers last evening won a match from the Congregational church league in a close fought game all way through. The game was featured by some excellent bowling on both sides. The Congregationalists started strong for the winning, but in the second inning lost by two points, but still retained the lead, while in the last the Baptists went over them rough shod. ## AMERICAN & IDEAL RADIATORS & BOILERS

With IDEAL Boiler and AMERICAN Radiators, there can be no over-heating requiring you to open the windows—no under-heating causing chills, colds and discomfort. Fuel waste is cut out. Every heat unit is made to do its full work. Every pound of coal is burned economically.

Automatic regulation gives regular and exact heat supply

IDEAL Boilers are designed, built and tested by highest engineering talent. Our engineers will not permit an IDEAL Boiler or AMERICAN Radiator to pass the testing laboratories that does not measure up to the exact scientific requirement as stated in our catalogs. Therefore, when you buy IDEAL heating you start on the right basis to get the utmost amount of heat from the least fuel.

IDEAL-AMERICAN heating saved millions in coal waste last winter

It is of the greatest importance that you should specify IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators for your new or old building because now more than ever it is necessary to practice the most rigid fuel economy. Furthermore, IDEAL Boilers burn the cheaper grades of hard and soft coal, screenings, pea coal, lignite, coke, wood, gas, oil, etc.—thus offering you this means of saving.

WILLARD WILL WANT TEN ROUND CONTEST

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.] New York, April 8.—Now that Jess Willard and Fred Fulton, the two most ponderous heavyweights, have entangled themselves by a set of articles agreeing to a battle for the world's heavyweight championship, it is to be suspected that Jess is looking around for a soft place to light.

Ten round and eight round laws, according to past performances of the heavyweight title holder, should offer very attractive purses, for they probably will be given a great deal of consideration. If a decision clause is hooked onto the law or the commission rules, so much the better—for Jess.

Willard would wind up a career of pacifist principles in an ago of fighting should he agree to meet Fulton in a decision, short bout. The only scrap he has engaged in since he thrashed Jack Johnson was one of the kind of fiasco and it was just as unsatisfactory as it is possible to make a bout. ## JACK JOHNSON, BOXER THOUGH HE WAS NEVER HELD ANY GREAT AMOUNT OF RESPECT FROM HIS FELLOW MEN FOR HIS FIGHTING AND PUNCHING ABILITY

Jack Johnson, boxer though he was never held any great amount of respect from his fellow men for his fighting and punching ability. Jess Willard's achievements have been nothing. He has never proven himself a real champion. When Jeffries laid down the crown, such a howl was raised over the battle at it that it actually affected the ranks of the heavyweights. Not a single high-class man has appeared before the public since Jeffries, with the exception of Fred Fulton and Jack Dempsey.

Here appears to be the upward movement of the heavyweights again. EDDIE MCGOORTHY TO GET BOXING APPOINTMENT

MOTOR TRUCKING.

There will be more motor trucking by motor to save freight from now on. The railway lines will continue to be congested for several years to come and in consequence new methods of transporting produce and ordinary freight will have to come into use. For some time past, a large concern at Delavan has shipped tons and tons of its product overland to a coal and oil company to have them delivered and then transported back home again. The motor truck in hauling milk to the Janesville and other shipping points in the county, has become a fixture and consequently we are not unprepared for a return to the old days when the highways were the means of communication between communities. We have seen back and the knitting of our grandmothers and a great number of us who do not go to work in the morning and have regular stage coaches running between various towns at convenient hours, to truck produce and supplies and even to carry passengers. Already autos play an important part in the delivery of the Janesville Gazette in Edgerton and it is only a matter of time when other communities will be served in a similar manner. This means better highways, but this is a welcome innovation and money can well be spent on them to the advantage of the farmers in the immediate vicinity and to the public at large. In an eastern community last winter the scheme was worked out even further and manufacturers employed motor trucks to carry their finished products along certain routes. Arrival at their destination found agents there who had picked up return loads of freight and the cost of transportation was cut down to a minimum.

Almost every farm has its motor car and it is in frequent use. While the cost of maintenance is increasing, still they need it more than ever and being the rural districts into closer touch with the urban resident. It is better for both and with this daylight saving hour it will mean much during the next six months.

It used to be thought that to make country life successful, trolley lines would have to be built through the rural districts. But the cost of constructing trolley lines has greatly increased. A great many of the existing trolley lines do not pay. Such lines will not be built as freely for the next twenty years.

The motor truck is, however, a good substitute. The usual method for getting country produce to market, is by carrying it up his horse or wagon and drive or send a man to the railroad freight station. Small loads are carried, often over bad roads. One good motor truck would do the work of a number of teams, and only one man's wages would have to be paid.

A motor truck system for a district of farm country could make certain trips on certain days of the week, and cover its whole neighborhood with regularity. It would reduce the demand for farm labor, and cut the cost both of getting food to market and getting supplies to the farmer.

ALL FOR THE WAR.

There has been too much easy optimism in putting over this war. We have been accustomed to say that the population and wealth of the United States and its allies are about twice that of Germany and her allies have. Therefore we must win. The war are not won by the countries that have the biggest population. Russia has three times as many people as Germany. Yet Germany administered a frightful whipping to her giant neighbor, and the Russians are cowering before her like whipped cubs. Neither can wealth alone win the war.

Our people are not Russians. We must learn what has been the source of Germany's marvelous success. Germany's people are not supermen. They are not smarter than any other people. It is simply that the entire national force is put into this war. Whatever spirit of dissent or revolt exists at home, it has so far amounted to nothing. Every man, woman and child is working for the war.

This had been the cause in this country, we would today have built twice as many ships as we have since last April, and we would have put twice as many men in France as we have. We have been held up by many causes, chief among which are labor troubles.

There have been some capitalists that were more anxious to get money for themselves than to win the war. There have been some working people more anxious to get advantages for labor than to win the war. In so far as this spirit exists, it ties up our production. Fortunately as the war goes on and the ugliness and inhumanity of the German pretensions become more apparent, we are becoming very united. A unanimity of support is being given that we should have had months ago. We must all work with this end in view, or see the war greatly prolonged, and perhaps suffer defeat.

OUR PART.

There are a lot of men left on the "top side" of this country of ours who would give everything they own to be somewhere "over there" just at the present minute. While these men are doing their own individual bit and are making it possible for this government to send more men "over there," yet the thought buried way down in the hearts of many is spelled out by that old word L-O-V-E-A-L-T-Y. That is the bond that makes us "stay at home" satisfied we are going to be able to do our part and help win this war.

Rock county has met every demand made upon it for funds for various war activities, the great drive for the war fund of "Your Share is Fair" is really not completed, but just the same we must now do our share of this new Liberty bond issue asked for by the government. The individual sum is not great, but taking it as a total it is large and the final accounting means Rock county must do its share.

Two bond issues have preceded and more will come, but we must keep on and help finance this war. Our bonds are par now and they must remain so. The only way to do so is to aid in checking this Hun advance and throwing our own flesh and blood into the boiling caldron somewhere "over there." Some of us have no sons to send, the majority of us here at home are too old to be of material aid, but we all can help in giving from our purses and buying bonds. The drive is one and do not be a laggard, and remember and do your "bit" as it were, by buying a bond or two when asked.

WHEAT NEEDED.

Dean Davenport of the University of Illinois in his address to the milk producers on Thursday night gave a most vivid picture of the necessity of raising more wheat in Wisconsin. The great deficiency in the world's food supply. More wheat is needed and it is up to Rock county to help furnish Wisconsin's quota. Wheat can be grown here successfully and an acre or two on every farm in the county would mean wonderful results in the total supply. It is not too late to plant yet and there is plenty of good seed at hand, so why hesitate? One acre of wheat should yield twenty to twenty-five bushels or better. The old way of measuring the crops would be so many barrels of flour to the acre and allowing five to six bushels per barrel; one acre would supply two ordinary families a year with their flour. If Rock county could produce its own bread supply think what a saving it would mean when the wheat of the northwest or southwest wheat districts are considered. Food is needed to win this war and the staff of life is bread, so let us raise our own supply here at home.

A man who grows about taking one of the new issue of Liberty bonds, would no doubt be glad to pay taxes to the knaiser any time that potatoes are needed that it is about time for another war.

It would seem as if everyone who expects other people to send their wheat to the trenches might at least get along for a few months on corn bread instead of white flour.

If everyone says the amount of stuff he can raise in his garden doesn't amount to anything, we shall all have to pay the prices for vegetables that were charged a year ago.

Some folks who are worrying the most about the German drive, were saying six months ago that it would be foolish for the United States to try to send any soldiers to France.

And some of the people who think it is queer the government has to ask everyone to take bonds, are the same ones who are blowing all their surplus in on sports.

The men who are knitting for the soldiers are highly to be commended. Probably the soldiers that wear the things would prefer the ordinary man to do his knitting with the bee handle.

It is denied that the spies started the recent fires and explosions as they are all busy holding up the airplane and ship-building work.

It is not known who is doing all the devilry about the country, as it might be either German or Austrian spies.

Any time Mr. Hindenburg wants to play his little game of giving up several hundred thousand men for a few miles of territory, our allies will be ready to accommodate him.

The people who think the Germans can be beaten simply by handing out supplies to our allies, should have been over within reach of the big drive.

Under present war news, the fact that our favorite pitcher sprained his ankle at the training camp is not the thrilling event of national interest it used to be.

The United States is conceded to have the moral leadership of the war, but this doesn't drive the Germans out of any trenches.

Now it remains to be seen whether those who cheer the patriotic speeches the loudest will be the most ready to take a Liberty bond.

Hindenburg was going to be in Paris, April 1, but evidently he stopped to pick up something nailed to the sidewalk.

Aids Liberty Loan. Madison, Wis., April 9.—State Senator Roy Wilcox, who is shortly expected to announce his candidacy as the progressive, republican candidate for Governor next fall, started Monday on a three-week tour of the Lake shore and Fox River valley cities in the interests of the Liberty Loan. He is accompanied by a portion of the Great Lakes Jackie band.

THE TEXAS RANGER.
I've heard the English Tommy make his after-dinner speech, I've heard him tell what happened when the shrapnel began to screech, I've heard the brave Canadian describe the tangled heap Of men who died for freedom at that little town of Ypres, And I've heard a gallant Frenchman in his cap of blue and red— And each one of them has told me what some Texan did or said.

Oh it seems some son of Texas, long before our flag was there, Heard the summons to the trenches, and went out to do and dare. It may be he heard the shooting, it may be he saw the star shells bright, But the fact is that he traveled, land and water, rail and ship, And he rode the famous Yankoo waiting, with his gun upon his hip. Every mile of trench had him, every dugout he heard him swear, Not a raid or light was happened, but the famous Yankoo was there. And these heroes of the battles, who've come back to us, relate How the ranger out of Texas won not laurels for his state. And they thrill us with his courage or his humor never hid As they make a point or something that a cowboy said or did.

There are thousands of 'em going, there are thousands of his kind, That have quit the days of pleasure, and have left their joys behind. Even the famous Yankoo has her dust on the way, And the raw-boned Texas ranger has good common today. In the trenches and the craters, till they will scatter Yankee humor and will show their Yankee grit.

Evansville Quota of Boys for Farm Work.

Evansville, April 9.—As school closed last Friday, April 5, for the spring vacation, twenty-two boys of the high school and the junior high school closed their books for this school year and left to accept positions on farms for work through this season. These boys, especially in the high school, have been doing extra work for some weeks past to make up and keep credits, that they might leave for farm work.

CAREFUL WATCH FOR SPIES IN TRENCHES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

With the American Army in France April 9.—Spies who may endeavor to get into the ranks of the American Expeditionary Forces are likely to find such a manoeuvre extremely difficult and dangerous, so complete are the arrangements to prevent such things happening. Of course it is not advisable just what the arrangements are, but every ruse tried by enemy agents during this war in various armies, and some have not been tried, have been provided for.

It came to light recently that orders have been issued in certain quarters to the general effect that officers receiving drafts into combat divisions from replacement divisions were to make sure that each member of the draft actually was the man he was supposed to be and that no other man was included in the group. Just what caused this order is not disclosed but it contains an inference that is obvious.

The order was issued just a few days before one of our telephone wires had been found tapped in a trench, the tap wire running across No Man's Land. There was some talk at that time among the men in the line of hunting for a spy, but there has been no further development. It is not impossible, however, that a German patrol taking advantage of the opportune moment hooked their tap wire on the line in our trench and then retired quickly.

FORTY-SIX TO CAMP GRANT APRIL 26TH

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ROCK COUNTY WILL SEND AN-OTHER BIG INCREMENT
TO THE ROCKFORD
CANTONMENT

NOTIFY MEN TOMORROW

Notices Will Be Mailed Sometime
Tomorrow To Those Who Are
To Make Up The Quota—
Beloit District's Quota 53

Forty-six select men from the quota which will be sent from this district to Camp Grant some time during the five-day period beginning Friday, April 26th. The exact date and hour of departure as well as the route to be traveled will be announced within a few days as soon as the schedule of the movement of men all over the state is completed by the American Railway association. The notification that the quota from the Janesville district of Rock county would be forty-six, was received this morning by the local board.

Before notices can be mailed to a sufficient number of men to complete the quota there are two or three minor points in regard to the temporary exemption of farmers which must be settled. It is probable that a number of the exempted from the Oregon call for the reason that they were "actively and assiduously engaged in the planting or cultivation of crops" will be included in the contingent to be sent to Camp Grant. Until a decision is reached on this question no notices will be mailed.

The movement of the forty-six men to the camp will be another big event in the history of the city. It will be the second largest group of drafted men to be sent from this district, and it is probable that another big demonstration such as was held for the Oregon contingent will be given for this next group of boys who will enter training. The largest number of men to be sent at one time under the selective service act was the increment of sixty-one, which left September 19, 1917, for Camp Grant. During the last five days of this month, however, will send 3,258 men to camp. Of this number 1,736 men go to Camp Custer and 2,477 to Camp Grant. 461 of the latter being required to fill the quota for the first draft. The quota for cities and counties announced by Adjutant General Hoiway follow:

To Camp Custer.
Green Bay, 40; Kenosha, 59; Racine, 40; Brown county, 31; Calumet, 21; Door, 20; Kenosha, 13; Kewaunee, 17; Manitowish, division 1, 28; division two, 29; Milwaukee, 38; one, 58; division two, 47; Ozaukee, 18; one, 58; division two, 47; Sheboygan, division one, 44; division two, 31; Waukegan, 53; Milwaukee city, fifteen boards, 554.

50 CAMERA EXPERTS ARE WANTED AT ONCE

Badger State Must Furnish Fifty Selects For Army Service With Good Knowledge of Photographic Work.

Uncle Sam wants fifty photographers from the state of Wisconsin to go to Europe for army service. Men included in the draft who have professional or advanced amateur experience in this line of work may be called upon to make themselves available by notifying the local board. The quota of fifty from this state must be filled but not exceeded states the order received this morning from the Governor. The board has been ordered to write the adjutant-general at the end of each day the number of men who have applied so that the number will not be exceeded. Those who consider themselves qualified to perform photographic work which would be of value, should notify the board at once if they desire to enter this desirable branch of the service. The authorities at Madison will accept or reject all applicants, the local board having no power to pass upon them. Those accepted will be sent to the training camp at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, where they will be assigned to various units. The call is valid after April 15th.

I. W. W. WORKER TAKEN INTO CUSTODY IN THE CITY LAST EVENING

Richard Kopekie Who Came Here From Iowa Arrested by Chief of Police Champlin—Held for Investigation

Janesville is no place for a man if he is either pro-German or an I. W. W. and Richard Kopekie learned that last evening when Chief of Police Champlin arrested him for trying to gain members to the I. W. W.

Kopekie arrived in Janesville a short time ago from Iowa and it is alleged that he was here to enlist in the cause of the I. W. W. as he calls it. He has been suspected by the chief for many days as an agitator and it was with the watch that he was finally arrested.

When Kopekie was first suspected he was offered a job on the section at twenty-five cents an hour but it is alleged that he refused this saying that he would not work for that money. After refusing the job he in turn talked to the men on the section asking them to join the I. W. W.

Kopekie is a man of about thirty-seven years of age and fairly well dressed. He has no means of support as he has not been working since his arrival in this city but he appears to have money from somewhere to live on.

Chief Champlin is holding the man pending an investigation and has not yet decided on what course to pursue. However it is certain that the man will not have another opportunity of spreading his propaganda throughout this city.

Chief Champlin is very forceful in explaining that this city was no place for men of his calibre and that I. W. W.'s are not wanted here and won't find a very warm welcome awaiting them should they decide to pay Janesville a visit.

EVENING CLASS FOR SURGICAL DRESSINGS

Will Be Formed Tomorrow Evening at City Hall—All Unable to Attend Day Sessions Invited to Become Members.

An evening class for the making of surgical dressings will be organized tomorrow evening at the city hall so that all who are unable to attend the morning or afternoon classes may have an opportunity to help on this necessary part of the Red Cross work.

Anyone wishing to assist in the surgical dressings work is welcome. A long-sleeved white apron and covering for the hair are all that is required in the way of equipment.

Instructors will be in attendance at all meetings. The dressings required at the present time are being made at the city hall and a large number will take advantage of this evening class.

The day sessions, morning and afternoon, will continue as usual. No work in the surgical dressings will be done, however, the last three days of the week until further notice.

SEVERAL BIG MEETINGS DURING THE CAMPAIGN

JANESVILLE COMMITTEE WILL HOLD MASS MEETINGS PRECEDING BIG DRIVE FOR THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

MARTIN GILLEN TO TALK

Machine Man Will Come to Janesville If Possible to Help Boost Liberty Loan Campaign

Liberty loan work in Janesville is progressing splendidly and more bonds are being purchased each day. The organization of the women's committee for the big drive is going on rapidly under the direction of Mrs. J. A. Ford. Captains are being selected in each ward and it is expected that the committee will be completed and the names announced tomorrow.

In the last campaign a great many of the women of the city purchased their bonds through their husbands and went direct to the bank and bought them. The women's committee are keeping a separate record of the ladies of the city in the present campaign and it is the desire of the committee to have the ladies buy their bonds through the women's committee.

The federal government is going to give a service flag to every city that makes its quota. Janesville must make a great effort and reach its quota early. Some cities have already subscribed their quota, although the next week, everyone who can do so is urged to make up their minds to buy the largest amount of bonds they can possibly give through the headquarters of this city to remember that the Kaiser is watching this campaign with interest and is as much afraid of our efforts as he is of our fighters over there.

Many questions are asked at the Liberty loan headquarters about the conversion of the bonds. Such conversion can be made by transferring the 3 1/2 and 4 percent bonds into the bonds of the present campaign bearing 4 1/2 percent interest. However, the committee make known that such conversions do not count on Janesville's quota. People considering conversion are advised to discuss the matter with their bankers. That is a private matter for each one to settle for himself.

The committee has again requested that as far as possible bonds should be purchased at the Janesville headquarters on North Main street and not through the banks. The bankers are co-operating splendidly and doing everything in their power to help make the present campaign a success.

A great amount of the advertising matter has been distributed by the Boy Scouts. Several community meetings have been held throughout the city at the country schools and the country school teachers are working hard to assist the county committee.

The date of the big drive has not yet been decided upon and it may be necessary to postpone it several days. The local committee, through A. P. Lovejoy, chairman, have asked Martin Gillette, machine man, to come to the city for a meeting, but to date no word has been received from the speaker. It is the plan of the committee to hold at least two big mass meetings before opening the big drive and they are endeavoring to have Mr. Gillette here on next Monday evening.

MAN FOUND IN CRAZED CONDITION NEAR MILTON

Sheriff Robert Whipple was called to Milton yesterday to take in custody an insane about forty-five years of age who was wandering around the countryside in a crazed condition.

All efforts of the Sheriff to learn the man's name have proved futile. His clothing is marked J. Copak but he had no papers or other articles around him that would assist in learning his name or home.

Sheriff Whipple is holding him until he can hear from state authorities. The only time the man will talk is when asked where he lives and the men mumbles something like Oconomowoc.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-one years old and would like to have you give an opinion of a certain fellow. After going steady with one girl for about two or three months, showing her the best time, taking her to his home, introducing her to his parents and doing everything he possibly can for her and then telling her that he loves her—after he gets her that far he tires of her and goes around and gets another girl. This one some-times is a very nice girl, but if she does the same thing with the second girl and also the third, but if she does the same thing with the third and I feel awfully bad about it.

Then he turns around again and tries very hard to get the first one back again after he has hurt her and the other ones.

Should I tell him what I think of him, and I want him back, but I don't know what I should do. Please advise me.

A DISAPPOINTED ONE.

The boy is a fickle and selfish and not a gentleman at all. He would not talk about the girls he has gone with. Some people are very fickle by nature. They can't help it. One person is a fickle and another is a fickle should know his tendency and consider the feelings of the girl more than his own desire to be with her. Do not have anything to do with the boy. After he has talked about you the way he does not deserve any future consideration. Also do not tell him what you think of him. That is not necessary. If you refuse to tell him what you think of him, he will know what you think of him. I am a young lady about seventeen years old and they say I am very attractive. I want girl-friends very much, but it seems I can't keep any. If I get acquainted with a girl she doesn't seem to care for my company more than once or twice. Can you please tell me what the trouble is?

I am of a very loving disposition and have plenty of young men admirers. I have been told the girls are jealous of me. Do you think this is the reason I can't have any girl friends? What can I do about it, as I would enjoy having a nice girl friend so much?

THANKFUL DOLLY.

I do not believe the girls are jealous. A girl who is popular with boys is usually a favorite with girls too. If she takes the trouble to be nice to them and consider their feelings. It may be that you talk about the boys too much and hurt the girls because they are less fortunate and have fewer boy friends. When you are with girls forget all about your boy friends and never talk about them. Interest yourself in the things you, girl friends like and do kind little acts for girls. If you are thoughtful and forget yourself you are bound to be liked.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a fellow for several months and I have been his only girl friend. I am sick with the grip and I would like to call on him. Do you think I should?

BERTHA.

Write him a letter instead.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do you think shell-rimmed glasses are tough?

BETTY.

They are worn by many refined girls. I do not consider them tough.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me how to sign a letter to a boy friend.

"Sincerely," "Yours very truly," "As ever."

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

The Long Lean Lad Leads a Languorous Life

Doctors whose knowledge of dietetics and nutrition extends beyond the "digestible" from "indigestible" articles in the diet, base an estimate of an individual's food requirements on two things. First, the "basal metabolism," which means the heat energy required to maintain the beating of the heart, the movements of respiration, the normal body temperature and the various involuntary functions of the body; and second, the heat energy required to do the work the individual has to do. A man who weighs 150 pounds requires about 70 calories per hour to maintain his basal metabolism. A calorie is the amount of heat you would have to apply to one liter of water at 9 degrees to raise the temperature of the water to 1 degree Centigrade, no matter whether the heat came from coal, wood, starch, sugar, oil or fat, or protein. The man at complete rest would require 70 calories per hour to keep his heart beating, his respiration working, his temperature normal (98.5 degrees Fahrenheit) and his constant involuntary functions going. If he received no food, his body fat would be utilized to furnish the necessary calories, and he would steadily emaciate. If he received too little food, he would still lose some weight every day. If he received too much food he might gain in weight, provided he remained at rest. But as soon as he begins to take any exercise or do any work, his metabolism increases in proportion, and in order to keep in normal health and nutrition he must have much more food than he needs while he is at rest. The average man's basal metabolism jumps from 70 per hour (1680 per day) to from 100 to 180 or more calories per hour (2400 to 4320 calories per day).

Half a glass of fresh milk (3 ounces, or 100 grams) yields about 70 calories. Therefore, four and one-half pints of milk would maintain the average man's basal metabolism provided all the nutriment in the milk were absorbed.

But in boys the basal metabolism is greater than in adults and weight, as much as 95 per cent greater in many instances. Therefore, the long, lean, rapidly growing, or overgrown boy must eat like a horse—the extraordinary energy is demanded to compensate for that devouring growth. He must eat around his father and the hired man. Especially is this true if the boy is active physically or doing any work. Let mother and the girls be content with him. A rapidly growing boy is not normal unless he has a large appetite. It is a practical fact that the food requirement of a boy over twelve years of age is about the same as that of a grown man. And if the boy is exceptionally tall for his age he requires more food than a man. The same ratio exists between the food requirement of the growing girl and that of her mother.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

ANSWER.—Please inform me what gas accumulates in the stomach and whether it is in any way dangerous.

ANSWER.—Hayhurst and Scott reported four cases of fatal asphyxia from carbon dioxide (carbonic acid gas) in a sealed chamber in which all the oxygen had been exhausted. This gas is produced by fermentation. A candle or other flame would extinguish the gas. It is a deadly poison in dangerous proportion were present in the air. This test should be made before venturing into a room. Proper ventilation would prevent accumulation of the gas. Treatment for one asphyxiated would be to remove the victim to the open air and give artificial respiration by Schaefer's method (breath pressure method) which is very simple. Everybody should know how to use it in an emergency.

ANSWER.—The past two months I have been annoyed by either a cold in the head or a kind of a hay fever, and have been unable to sleep at night. I seem to be coming over the hump, but I am still unable to sleep. I am very tired and my eyes water freely and I sneeze every few minutes and my head aches in the afternoon. The trouble all passes off and I feel fine in the evening. Am I loosed?

ANSWER.—Description suggests trouble in ethmoid or other nasal sinus. Better let your doctor or a nose and throat man investigate that region.

TODAY'S BEAUTY HINT

It is not necessary to shampoo your hair so frequently. If it is only and properly cleaned each time by the use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest to dry shampoo that we can recommend to our readers is one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair and may be enjoyed at very little expense, by dissolving a teaspoonful of Cantharol in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to the hair instead of just to the top of the head. This, when rubbed into the scalp and onto every strand of hair, chemically dissolves all impurities. It is very soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to both scalp and hair. After rinsing out the lather so created, you will find the scalp is fresh, clean and free from dandruff, while the hair is soft and shiny. It is a real hair-bruising and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy. Advertisement.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

Even at a formal dinner, it is permissible to ask the servant for a second glass of water, if he fails to keep your glass filled.

MRS. SMITH: It does not matter if you and your former friend have had a serious disagreement, you should still bow to her when you meet her on the street. No gentleman would be guilty of refusing to recognize an acquaintance in public, in spite of any private quarrel.

Remember that you are still acquainted with her. If she refuses to acknowledge your greeting, you need not attempt to speak to her again. The responsibility is on her. The gentleman who will have the satisfaction of knowing that you, at least, behaved as a lady should. Your bow should be accompanied by a pleasant smile. If she has since you have always called her by her first name, it would be absurd for you to call her by any other now, if you address her as very often as he used to. He was busy, he wrote Claire, and needed all his overtime money to pay the bills and the increased household budget now that Claire was home. The bills were dreadful. Claire scarcely had time to get home to her home expenses and the bills too. Claire worried and wondered if there was any way she could earn money. What could she do in a place like Turnpike Junction?

She went out one afternoon for a breath of air and to have some prescriptions refilled at the drug store, and she was thinking, as she walked along the uninteresting village street, "A penny for your thoughts!" said a voice behind her. She turned and a responsive smile lit up her face. "What a wonderful looking boy!" she asked. "Oh, no," said Claire. "I was just figuring out about my bills. There are some pretty sleep ones at our house."

FOR MEATLESS DAY.

Potato Soup (serves eight people)—three quarts water, one quart sliced potatoes, three tablespoons oil, one egg, one pint flour, one tablespoon meat fryings or butter, two teaspoons salt, dash of pepper. Put water and salt, pepper, meat fryings in kettle. Then add potatoes and the rice. When the potatoes are soft so they can be cut easily with a spoon, beat the egg; add to the flour and mix with a spoon and fork. Add to the rest of ingredients, stirring all the time till it holds up; then serve.

Fish Stew—Combine two onions chopped fine, one carrot sliced thin, one-half cup hopped celery, one teaspoon salt, three cups water and one-half lemon sliced thin. Boil ten minutes. Add one-quarter cup vinegar and boil ten minutes; add one pound of halibut cut in small pieces and simmer until the fish is done. Remove fish, and strain the soup. Cook four minutes. Add one cup of egg and lemon juice. Pour over fish and serve at once.

Communal Rissoles—Mix one teaspoon cornmeal with one cup ground rice; add four cups milk and cook slowly until quite stiff; add four tablespoons butter substitute and two tablespoons fine bread crumbs. Fry four slices on each side in hot oil. Drain and serve as desired. Cook for a few minutes, stirring constantly. Add two well beaten eggs, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon pepper. Boil one-half tablespoon chopped parsley. Turn out to cool.

Form into neat rounds, brush over with beaten egg or milk, top with cornmeal and fry in smoking hot fat. Drain and serve garnished as desired.

Macaroni and Cheese—Cook Macaroni in salt water; when done drain water off, put in pan and slice some good cheese all over the top and sprinkle pepper over. Put lid on and put in oven until cheese is melted. Turn through a colander; then serve.

WITH A CAN OF TOMATOES Make a can of tomatoes serve a family of three for three meals.

The first meal has tomato salad (the best of the most whole and perfect tomatoes served as they come from the can, with mayonnaise dressing).

For the second meal have cooked tomatoes (the best of the most whole and perfect tomatoes served as they come from the can, with seasoning and a few cubes of stale bread added).

For the third meal the rest of the juice with milk, seasoning and a bit of onion; make three plates of delicious soup.

Sales of the Friendly Forest

Wake up! Wake up! It's early morning. The cock is tooting his little tin horn. The morning wind is singing a tune. About the roses that bloom in June. It's time to be up, for the day is here. And the sky is shining bright and clear.

So out of bed hopped Billy Bunny and Uncle Lucky, and then they were bound one way or another, for they were so tired the night before that they had gone to bed with them on, as I told you in the last story.

Well, when they got down stairs they found the squirrel who owned "Cuddie Inn" already up and dressed. A most delicious smell of hot coffee and rolls came from the kitchen, so they quickly went into the dining room and read the menu card. And what do you think they ordered? Lettuce leaves, with cream all over them, and corn cake muffins and warm milk, and, let me see. Oh, yes! Oh, yes! Apple pie! For Uncle Lucky loved apple pie, and Billy Bunny loved it just as much, although he couldn't eat as many as the old gentleman rabbit could, for the reason that he ate so many candy carrots.

And now that we are through breakfast," cried little Billy Bunny, "let's go fishing, for I heard a boy say outside the window that the trout in the forest brook were nibbling at the forest brook." "What were so hungry?" Just think of that! So the kind Squirrel Innkeeper got out two fishing poles and Billy Bunny and Uncle Lucky started off.

Well, by and by they came to the trout stream and commenced to fish, and in a little while they had three big trout. Wasn't that fine? Then they put them in a basket with nice wet leaves and after that they fell down for lunch. And then they fell asleep. And while they were dreaming that a big whale had swallowed both looks and was pulling them into the water a tramp cat came by and stole the basket of trout.

Yes, sir! As soon as she snail fish she walked right up and without making a sound lifted up the basket and trotted away, and of course when the two little rabbits woke up they couldn't find the basket of fish.

"Well, that's a nice howdy do," exclaimed Uncle Lucky, ruefully, which means even worse than sadly, you know. "What shall we tell the Squirrel Innkeeper? It's his basket, you know, although the fish belong to us."

And while they were wondering what to do, an old basket maker came by with a pack of baskets. So Uncle Lucky took out his purse and bought one, and then he and Billy Bunny began again to fish. But oh, dear me! I guess the trout had all gone away, for they never got to the end of the stream. No wonder, who stung Uncle Lucky on the little left hind toe. And in the next story, if the Tailor Bird doesn't sew up the trout, you'll know that I can't get my collar on in the morning. I'll tell you more about Uncle Lucky, Lethandfoot and his little nephew, Billy Bunny.

RENEWING OLD FRIENDSHIPS.

By the same mail that carried Claire's letter to Jack, she received his letter. He was waiting for her to come to the office. She wrote this letter in a hurry, and many tears were in her eyes. She felt sure that she would never see him again.

Her mother, more plaintive and exacting now than ever, gave Claire no rest. She found a thousand things to say to her. "You are still acquainted with her. ### A BAD APPETITE

Courtesy between parents and children is something I love to see. And yet the other day when I heard a father say, "please, dear" to her child, I felt just plain cross at that "please."

It was like this. The mother had sent a dish of a very nice pudding to a neighbor who was ill. She herself had a cold and did not feel able to go out, and so, when she had put the pudding in a dish and covered it daintily with a napkin in the neighborhood style, she called to her little girl, who was reading in the other room, and asked her not to take it over, but if she would take it over.

"I want to finish this story first," said the little girl.

"But, Louise, my dear," said the mother, "Mrs. Jones will have finished her dinner. Won't you please take it now?"

A Good Girl Indeed.

With an ungracious manner, the child laid down the book and slowly went to her room.

"That's a good girl," said her mother as she put the pudding dish into her hands.

A good girl indeed.

Scalp Sore, Itched and He Was Restless at Night, Hair Fell Out.

"My seven year old boy suffered from tetter which started on the back of his head as a pimple. Then it formed a group of little bumps that would itch for two or three days and then run. His scalp was very sore and he could not bear to have anyone touch it. It itched and he was restless at night. His hair fell out leaving a bald spot."

thing that she should have been glad to do, seemed to me like the most inefficient kind of child management. No wonder Louise's mother looks tired most of the time! Think of the energy she must have to spend in this sort of thing.

I do not think there is anyone who enjoys seeing children happy more than I do, or who sympathizes more deeply with their trials. I simply cannot bear to see a youngster disappointed. But I do think this idea that a child should be perfectly carefree, should not have any duties or responsibilities, should not be asked to think of others, and should be praised when he does ungraciously consent to do something for others, is perfect tommyrot.

Thank, But Don't Overpraise. I think a child should have certain routine duties and responsibilities. I think he should be trained to give a certain amount of service for others without question. Of course he should be thanked. That's decency. But he shouldn't be coaxed and he shouldn't be immediately praised.

There's nothing lays up trouble for parents any more than getting into the habit of coaxing or bribing. For a child's appetite for that sort of stimulus increases by leaps and bounds, just like all such appetites.

RAINBOW'S END

A NOVEL

"The Iron Trail," "The Spotters," "Heart of the Sunset," etc.

The man rose, still smiling. "It is I who have been silent," said he.

"Eh? Speak plainly."

"Gladly. I have long suspected that Don Esteban hid the deeds of his property with the rest of his valuables, and now that you admit—"

Donna Isabel recoiled sharply. "Admit! Are you mad? Deeds! What are you talking about?" Her eyes met his bravely enough, but she could feel her lips trembling loosely.

Casting aside all pretense, the overseer exclaimed: "Por el amor de Dios! An end to this! I know why you sent for me. You think I have been robbing you. Well, to be honest, so I have. Why should I tell as I do while you and those twins live here in luxury and idleness, squandering money to which you have no right?"

"Have I lost my reason?" gasped the widow. "No right?"

"At least no better right than I. Don't you understand? You have no title to these plantations! They are mine, for I have paid the taxes out of my own pockets, now these many years."

"Taxes! What do you mean?"

"I paid them. The receipts are in my name."

"Heaven! Such perfidy! And you who knew him!"

"The deeds have been lost for so long that the property would have reverted to the crown had it not been for me. You doubt that, eh? Well, appeal to the court and you will find that it is true. Now, then, let us be frank. Inasmuch as we're both in such the same fix, hadn't we better continue our present arrangements?" He stared unblinkingly at his listener. "Oh, I mean it! Is it not better for you to be content with what my generosity prompts me to give, rather than to risk ruin for both by grasping for too much?"

"The outrage! I warrant you have grown rich through your stealing!"

Isabel's voice had gone flat with consternation.

"Rich? Well, not exactly, but comfortably well off." Cueto actually smiled again. "No doubt my frankness is a shock to you. You are angry at my proposition, eh? Never mind. You will think better of it in time, if you are a sensible woman. But now, since at last we enjoy such confidential relations, let us have no more of these miserable suspicions of each other. Let us entirely forget this unpleasant misunderstanding and be the same good friends as before."

Having said this, Pancho Cueto stood silent a moment in polite expectancy; then receiving no intelligible reply, he bowed low and left the room.

To the avocations Donna Isabel Cueto's frank acknowledgment of theft was maddening, and the realization that she was helpless, nay, dependent upon his charity for her living, fairly crucified her proud spirit.

All day she brooded, and by the time evening came she had worked herself into such a state of nerves that she could eat no dinner. Some time during the course of the evening a wild idea came to Isabel. Knowing that the manager would spend the night beneath her roof, she planned to kill him. At first it seemed a simple thing to do—merely a matter of a dagger or a pistol, while he slept—but further thought revealed appalling risks and difficulties, and she decided to wait. Poison was far safer.

Constant brooding over the treasure had long since affected Donna Isabel's brain, and as a consequence she often dreamed about it. She dreamed about it again tonight, and, strangely enough, her dreams were pleasant. Sebastian appeared, but for once he neither cursed nor threatened her; and Esteban, when he came, was again the lover who had courted her in Habana. It was amazing, delightful. Esteban and she were walking through the grounds of the quinta and he was telling her about his studies of Spanish sovereigns, about those boxes bound with iron, about the gold and silver ornaments of heavenly beauty and the pearls as large as plums. As he talked Isabel felt herself grow hot and cold with anticipation; she experienced spasms of delight.

Then of a sudden Isabel's whole dream-world dissolved. She awoke, or thought she did, at hearing her name shouted. But although she underwent the mental and the physical shock of being startled from slumber, although she felt the first swift fright of a person aroused to strange surroundings, she knew on the instant that she must still be asleep; for everything about her was dim and dark, the air was cold and damp, wet grass rose to her knees.

Before she could half realize her condition she felt herself plunged into space. She heard herself scream hoarsely, fearfully, and knew, too late, that she was indeed awake. Then—whirling chaos—A sudden, blinding crash of lights and sounds—Nothing more!

Esteban Varona sat until a late hour that night over a letter which required the utmost care in its composition. "It was written upon the thinnest of paper, and when it was finished the writer inclosed it in an envelope of the same material. Esteban put the letter in his pocket without addressing it. Letting himself out into the night, he took the path that led to the old sunken garden. He passed close by the well, and its gaping mouth, only half protected by the broken coping, reminded him that he had promised Rosa to cover it with planks. In its present condition it was a menace to animals, if not to human beings who were unaware of its presence.

Seating himself on one of the old stone benches, the young man lit a cigarette and composed himself to wait. He sat there for a long time, grumbling inwardly, for the night was damp and he was sleepy; but at last a figure stole out of the gloom and joined him. The newcomer was a ragged negro, dressed in the fashion of the poorer country people.

"Well, Asensio, I thought you'd never come. I'll get a fever from this!" Esteban said irritably.

"It is a long way, Don Esteban, and Evangelina made me wait until dark. I tell you we have to be careful these days."

"What is the news? What did you hear?"

Asensio sighed gratefully as he seated himself. "One hears a great deal, but one never knows what to believe. There is fighting in Santa Clara, and Maceo sweeps westward."

Taking the unaddressed letter from his pocket, Esteban said, "I have another message for Colonel Lopez."

"That Lopez! He's here today and there tomorrow; one can never find him."

"Well, you must find him, and immediately, Asensio. This letter contains important news—so important, in fact!"—Esteban laughed lightly—"that if you find yourself in danger from the Spaniards I'd advise you to chew it up and swallow it as quickly as you can."

"I'll remember that," said the negro, "for there's danger enough. Still, I fear these Spaniards less than the guerrilleros; they are everywhere. They call themselves patriots, but they are nothing more than robbers. They—"

Asensio paused abruptly. He seized his companion by the arm and, leaning forward, stared across the level garden into the shadows opposite. Something was moving there, under the trees; the men could see that it was white and formless, and that it pursued an erratic course.

"What's that?" gasped the negro. He began to tremble violently and his breath became audible. Esteban was compelled to hold him down by main force. "It's old Don Esteban, your father. They say he walks at midnight carrying his head in his two hands."

Young Varona managed to whisper, with some show of courage: "Flush! Wait! I don't believe in ghosts." Nevertheless, he was on the point of big Asensio an example of undisciplined flight when the mysterious object emerged from the shadows into the open moonlight; then he sighed with relief: "Ah-h! Now I see! It is my stepmother. She is asleep."

For a moment or two they watched the progress of the white-robed figure; then Esteban stirred and rose from his seat. "She's too close to that well. There is—"

He started forward a night, and before going off duty asked: "Is there anything I can do for you before I leave?"

"He replied: 'Well, yes; I should like very much to be kissed good night.'"

The nurse rustled to the door. "Just wait till I call the orderly," she said. "He does all the rough work here."

Senator Warren C. Harding of Ohio remarked at a social gathering that some people are past masters in the art of evading an issue, and told the following story as an illustration.

Some time since, when little Willie returned home from school he found his fond mother waiting for him with a disturbed expression.

"Willie," said she, "did you eat any of those apples that I left in the kitchen cupboard?"

"Mamma," replied the youngster with great earnestness, "I have not touched one."

"Then," demanded the agitated parent, "how is it that I found four apple cores in your bedroom, and that there is only one apple left in the cupboard?"

"The one in the cupboard, mamma," explained Willie, looking to see if there was clear sailing to the garden gate, "is the one I didn't touch."

One of our able senators was arguing a momentous question with an opponent.

"You know I never boast," the opponent remarked during the argument.

"Never boast? Bull!" exclaimed

"What's That?" Gasped the Negro.

pace or two. "They say people who walk at night go mad if they're awakened too suddenly, and yet—"

When the somnambulist's deliberate progress toward the mouth of the well continued he called her name softly. "Donna Isabel!" Then he repeated it louder. "Donna Isabel! Wake up."

The woman seemed to hear and yet not to hear. She turned her head to listen, but continued to walk.

"Don't be alarmed," he said, reassuringly. "It is only Esteban, Donna Isabel! Stop!" Esteban sprang forward, shouting at the top of his voice, for at the sound of her name Isabel had abruptly swerved to her right, a movement which brought her dangerously close to the lip of the well.

"Stop! Go back!" screamed the young man.

Above his warning there came a shriek, shrill and agonized—a wail of such abysmal terror as to shock the night birds and the insects into stillness. Donna Isabel slipped, or stumbled, to her knees, she balanced briefly, clutching at random while the earth and crumbling cement gave way beneath her; then she slid forward and disappeared, almost out from between Esteban's hands. There was a noisy rattle of rock and pebble and a great splash far below; a chuckle of little stones striking the water, then a faint bubbling. Nothing more. The stepson stood in his tracks, sick, blind with horror; he was swaying over the opening when Asensio dragged him back.

Pancho Cueto, being a heavy sleeper, was the last to be roused by Esteban's outcries. When he had hurriedly slipped into his clothes in response to the pounding on his door, the few servants that the establishment supported had been thoroughly awakened. Cueto thought they must be out of their minds until he learned what had befallen the mistress of the house. Then, being a man of action, he too issued swift orders, with the result that by the time he and Esteban had run to the well a rope and lantern were ready for their use. Before Esteban could form and fit a loop for his shoulders there was sufficient help on hand to lower him into the treacherous abyss.

"That was a gruesome task which fell to Esteban, for the well had been long unused, its sides were oozing slime, its waters were stale and black. He was on the point of fainting when he finally climbed out, leaving the negroes to hoist the dripping, inert weight which he had found at the bottom.

Old Sebastian's curse had come true; Donna Isabel had met the fate he had called down upon her that day when he hung exhausted in his chains and when the flies tormented him. The treasure for which the woman had intrigued so tirelessly had been her death. Furthermore, as if in grimest irony, she had been permitted at the very last to find it. Living, she had searched to no purpose whatsoever; dying, she had almost grasped it in her arms.

Once the first excitement had abated and a messenger had been sent to town, Cueto drew Esteban aside and questioned him.

Almost $125 was raised.

MR. GORTON SAYS

Nujol Laboratories.
Standard Oil Company, (New Jersey),
Bayonne, New Jersey.

Dear Sirs:

I am 74 years of age, and had chronic constipation for years. Have suffered much at times trying to get relief by using physics. Now I use Nujol every morning just an hour before eating, and find it sure to give relief without griping pains of any kind. It leaves no bad results.

I cannot say too much in favor of Nujol as the best remedy for constipation, sour or burning stomach; it gets away with those troubles right away. My friends use it with the same results; never fails; no griping, no physicising, no inconvenience. I surely recommend it to all sufferers from constipation, old or young.

Hurley, South Dakota, Yours truly,
January 3, 1917. J. B. Gorton.

Mr. Gorton's letter is a valuable endorsement of Nujol to every sufferer from constipation. In all cases Nujol is a gentle, natural aid to normal bowel-action.

Don't merely tell your druggist, "Give me something for constipation." Insist on Nujol. You then protect your health against harmful pills and salts;—you run no risk of making the bowels dependent on laxatives and cathartics. There is not a single drug in Nujol! It is a safe remedy for young and old that makes you "regular as clockwork."

WASHINGTON CROWDED WITH WARTIME HELP

(By International News.)
Washington, April 8.—One year of war finds America's war government spread all over Washington. One of the most remarkable facts of the last twelve months has been the establishment here of war offices and buildings for the clerks.

Since Congress accepted Germany's challenge, approximately 40,000 new workers have come to Washington, accepting the country's call to service.

The council of defense employs 1,000 of these, 700 of whom are on a salary and approximately 300 of whom are "dollar-a-year patriots." These are housed in three high office buildings.

The food administration has 18,000 salaried employees in Washington alone, with 500 additional outside of Washington on salary, and 22,501 volunteers outside of Washington working full or part time.

The fuel administration has 555 paid workers and 100 volunteers. These require two office buildings. The shipping board and emergency fleet corporation employ 750 persons whose offices are scattered through sixteen buildings.

The war trade board has 4,200 employees with twelve office buildings distributed at widely separated points throughout the city.

The treasury department with its new facilities created as a result of the war, now has a Washington payroll of 15,250 and occupies fourteen buildings.

The director general of railroads has three for a very moderate in housing those engaged in one of the greatest tasks of the war. He has only 145 employees and uses only three floors of one of the big government buildings here.

Some idea of the war government's mushroom growth is seen in the fact that during the last five months six square blocks of new buildings—temporary since others quickly built—have sprung up in one part of the city alone. The war board will soon move into a new building occupying a solid square block and the railroad administration have a building under construction. In addition the department of justice is now engaged in a large new building of many stories which have served to embrace most of its divisions under one roof.

The war department and its sundry branches, such as ordnance, signal corps, and so forth, is widely scattered, some of the offices being a mile or more from the main war department building.

Camp Grant Notes

(Wisconsin Eagles.)
Camp Grant, Wis., April 8.—The regimental band and bugles and three officers will leave on a special train Saturday morning for Madison to march in the liberty day parade. They will be accompanied by four officers and forty men from the 231st Machine Gun Battalion. Leave will be given any other men in the regiment who wish to go at their own expense. Indications are that about 250 men will make the trip.

Company C.
With most of the regiment transferred the first battalion now messes with this company.

After waiting seven months the company has a piano and pooltable, and it is difficult to keep the cooks at their work.

Company D.
Second Lieutenant Robert E. Curran and Walter W. Sheldon, have been sent to Madison, Wis., where they will report for duty in connection with the new school for training selectives in special branches to be instituted under government auspices at the University of Wisconsin.

Company D suffered its first death last week when Private Brick C. R. Vick of Deer Park, Wis., died at the base hospital of acute pericarditis.

Sergeant Charles Augustine, Glenwood City, Wis., accompanied the remains to the home of the deceased. The boys of Company D sent a large floral offering for the casket and Captain Puller had it draped with a large flag.

Three married men in Company D were made happy recently by visits from their wives. Private Earl Harvey Corp. Smith, Maiden Rock, Wis.; Corporal Stanley R. Morse, River Falls, Wis., and Private Olaf Gustafson, River Falls, Wis.

Company E.
Four corporals, one mechanic and thirteen privates were transferred this week.

Lieutenant Frank Godfrey, attached to the 2nd and 3rd battalions, has been transferred to another camp.

Company H.
The chief subject of discussion is "on to Madison for the liberty loan parade," and it is safe to say that West Pointers won't have a thing on the 31st when they step at attention, with their band playing "On Wisconsin."

Company I.
Corporal F. Bibby, Wausau, Wis., has been placed on special duty with the military police on the soldier special running from camp to Chicago.

C. Camp's Gustave Lehman, Henry Wolf and Privates John E. Meyer, Frank Para, Edward Schultz, John Adams, Pelet, Herman A. Penn, Andy C. Eschenberg, Robert Schmidt, Theo. C. Hynick, William A. Lemere, and Jacob J. Bigus have been transferred to Texas. They all hail from Wausau, Wis.

Sisters To Take Hospital.
Oshkosh, Wis., April 9.—Lakeside hospital, built about five years ago as a sanatorium and later turned into a general hospital and training school for nurses, is soon to be taken over by the Sisters of the Sorrows Mother. The sisters operate the St. Mary's hospital in this city and others in this section of the state.

The Daily Novelette

THE ART OF DETECTING.

Gee whizz, but business is something fierce!
These momentous words were uttered by Mr. Sheerluck Bones as he sat in his coalless and foodless home office. Business was certainly on the blink. All the murderers and desperadoes had gone to work in the munition and other factories where high wages made ordinary robbery look like thirty cents.

Suddenly there was a heavy step at the door.

Then there was another step and this was followed by several other steps.

Hastily throwing open the door Sheerluck gazed at the features of a man.

"Say nothing," not a word," said Sheerluck. "I do my work by deduction and mind reading. Clean your eyes and think of your trouble. Think hard and try to forget everything else."

The great detector made several passes over the man who closed his eyes and strained as though he were trying to think.

While the shut-eyed man was thinking Sheerluck made several more passes all around the man and then suddenly slipped him on the shoulder.

"Open your eyes," said Sheerluck, "and now to tell you my deductions. You have been robbed!"

The man stared at him in amazement and Sheerluck continued: "You have recently been robbed of a diamond stickpin worth fifty dollars, a watch with the initials F. U. L. on the back and a pocketbook with a hundred and ten dollars in it."

As the great detector made his statement the man felt first for his pin, then for his watch and last for his pocketbook.

"Well, I'm durned if you ain't right," he said, "and when I come in here I didn't even know it. It must have been stolen by them fellows I asked for the hospital where my son is sick. Darn 'em."

"Don't blaspheme," said Sheerluck sternly. "I am the greatest detective the world has ever known and your treasures will be recovered. Wait."

Dashing through the door, Sheerluck disappeared for five minutes and then returned and handed all the stolen articles to the man.

"You sure are some detective," said the man, "and now that I've got everything back, wouldn't you favor me by taking this twenty-dollar bill for your work?"

"Under ordinary circumstances," said Sheerluck, "I would refuse pay for such a trifle but if it will please you I'll take the twenty."

Five minutes later Sheerluck Bones sat alone in his home office, having telephoned for coal and food.

"Aha," said he, "that was a happy thought of mine, to rob that fellow of his watch, pin and purse. Fine thought. When business is hard you have to make business and thus not only uphold your reputation but also secure the coin necessary to meet the grocer's bills."

STREET TRADES ACT APPLIES TO STATE

Madison, April 9.—A circular letter has been sent out by the Industrial Commission to boards of education, newspapers, and news dealers throughout the state calling attention to the law enacted at the special session of the legislature relating to street trades.

This new law extends the street trades act, hitherto applicable only to Milwaukee, to the entire state. Under this act no boy under twelve, and no girl under eighteen years of age may engage in any street trade, such as the sale or delivery of newspapers, the distribution of hand bills, or shoe shining. Boys between twelve and seventeen years of age may not be employed at street trades during the session of school, but may work at such trades before and after school hours if they first secure a street trades permit. No street trading is allowed before five o'clock in the morning or after 7:30 in the evening. Permits for street trading are to be issued in every locality by the board of education, or by some person deputized by the board to issue these permits. It is expected that the truant officers will be the ones deputized to issue these permits. To secure a street trades permit the parents of the boy must file with the issuing officer an application in writing therefor. The principal of the school which the boy is attending must also sign a statement to the effect that he is satisfied that the boy is mentally and physically able to engage in a street trade besides his regular school work.

The Industrial Commission is vested with authority to modify the rules regarding street trades permits in the different localities in the state, other than in Milwaukee. It, however, has no authority to modify the age limit of twelve years, below which no boy may engage in a street trade.

The commission has prepared the street trades law in pamphlet form and has also prepared forms of street trades permits and parents' applications. These are being sent to boards of education throughout the state, in order that they may, without delay, put the street trades law in operation.

This new law was enacted to provide for better regulation of street trading, and at the same time to free the newspapers of the state from liability for penalties under the child labor law and compensation acts. As the law stood it was practically impossible for a newspaper to comply strictly with the requirements of the child labor law since this prohibited the employment of boys at delivering newspapers under fourteen years of age, other than during the summer vacation of school. It is expected that the new law will have the hearty support of most newspapers in the state, and it is acceptable to the school authorities.

Meat is as Necessary as Steel and Ships

Food is the first essential of the fighting forces.

The American farmer and the packer have met every war emergency, and have promptly furnished an adequate supply of wholesome meat.

No other industry can claim a better record of war time efficiency.

Swift & Company has shipped to the United States Government and the Allied Nations,

Over 12,000,000 Pounds (400 carloads) per week, of beef, pork, and lard, since January 1, 1918.

In one week recently we shipped 24,000,000 Pounds (800 carloads), and the demand is increasing.

Our profits are limited by the Food Administration to 9 per cent on investment in the meat departments. (This means about 2 cents on each dollar of sales.) No profit is guaranteed.

We are co-operating with the Government to the best of our ability.
